Abstract:

Information visualization for lay users is a topic with heightened interest in recent years.

How can (information) visualization methods and techniques be used to visually convey complex concepts, models, statistics to lay persons?

How can visual literacy be heightened so that the masses are producing visualizations for the masses?

Abstract:

This thesis investigates how computer assistance in producing high-quality visualizations and in interpretation can result in expressive visualization and rapid interpretation of seismic volumes. Expressive visualizations represent the seismic data in an easily digestible, intuitive and pedagogic form. This enables rapid interpretation which accelerates the finding of important structures.
